

Sometimes you just have a good day. <g> This was one of those days.
I received an email from our "Friend Of The Hobby." What more could a collector of Illegal chips ask for?
A free chip and a ton of research all in 1 email! <g>

TGT had the FWN being used at the delivery address of 5234 N Clark St in Chicago. Frank Newell had a betting parlor at that address but as you will read it is almost certain they were used at the Purple Grackle in NW Cook County close to Elgin, IL. It was a big place with lots of gambling. TGT entry has been updated.

OK, what the heck is a Grackle and are they really purple? <g>
STOP! Google beat you to it, it is a bird. <g>

TGT also has the Purple Grackle with a G, The Purple Crackle with a C, and The Purple Krackle with a K all in Alexander County, East Cape Girardeau, IL. There was an error in one of the entries that has been fixed. All 3 entries are now correct and due to this research a 4th entry has been added as at one time it was just called "The Crackle." It opened in 1939 with only one crap table and operated under all 4 names. The last name change was to The Big Blue Martini.

Jerry Birl wrote a Club magazine article on East Cape Girardeau, IL illegals. He has a Purple Krackle with a K rectangle heart mold chip from the Club.

<http://www.thechipboard.com/index.cgi/md/read/id/1158609/sbj/purple-krackle-e-cape-girardeau-il/>

A new entry for The Purple Grackle with a G has been added for North West Cook County due to this research.

Two Purple Grackles, one in Northern IL and one in Southern IL.

When time permits I have asked for further research on East Cape Girardeau, IL. Another chip ID question from East Cape Girardeau, IL came to me in email in the last few days. It has to do with Lake Tahoe, NV casino chips possibly used there. I think there is a possibility and have asked for research on them.

This could be some very interesting research especially if those Tahoe chips were actually confiscated in an Illinois State Trooper raid. <g> I have some very interesting pictures and data suggesting they were.

Enough of that:

I've got a chip for you—if you don't have it already (front, back):

The guy I got it from was from the Chicago area and said that he only had two. I've been doing some research on it and got some info I can send on Newell and what he was up to.

Francis "Frank" William Newell, a native of New York State who moved to Chicago around 1910 where he worked as a waiter in a restaurant. By 1920 he was operating a cigar store in the Advertising Building at 123 W. Madison in downtown Chicago.

In 1928 the Chicago Tribune published a list of 215 gambling locations in the city of Chicago and Newell had two, both located about a block from each other and only a few blocks from City Hall. Here's a snip from the list showing the ones located inside the loop; I've attached the complete list in a JPEG.

My note: The complete list is at the end of this research. Imagine 215 illegal's in the Chicago city limits in 1928 during prohibition. BTW this is 3 years prior to what I call the "Era Of the Illegals." (When gambling was the main income after prohibition ended) I would love to see a list from the mid 1930's. But, on the other hand compare Chicago with millions of people, 215 illegals to Newport KY's 150 illegals with 34,000 people per the Saturday Evening Post. <g>

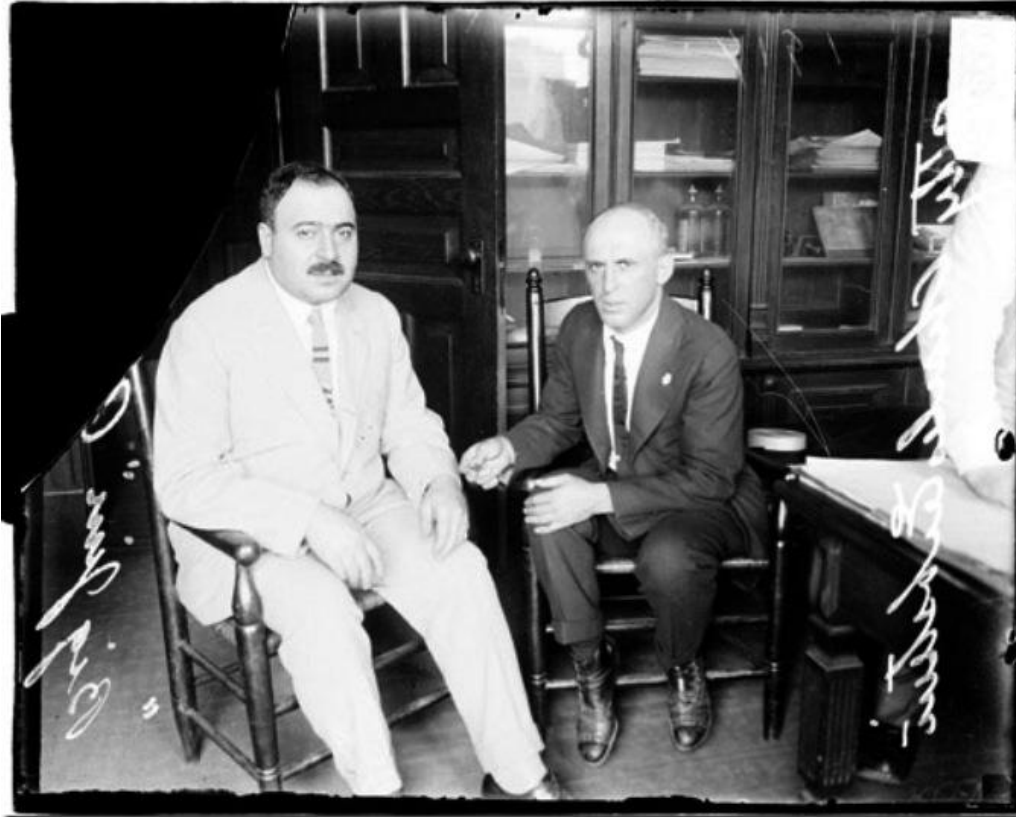

A side note: Murphy & Gorman at 312 S. Clark, the place on the list just above Newell, was described at the time as being the largest gambling operation in Chicago—20 roulette wheels, 15 blackjack tables, could accommodate up to 1,500 people.

My note: Murphy & Gorman has to be the biggest illegal I ever heard of.

At some point in the early 1930's Newell became associated with a place in northwest Cook County called the "Purple Grackle." The Purple Grackle was built in the early 1920's by a guy named Charles Erbstein. Erbstein was a very interesting guy. He made a fortune as one of Chicago's best criminal defense attorneys. In the late 1910's he bought several hundred acres of land a few mile east of Elgin where he built an estate which included a private golf course and a his own radio station—which in the 1920's became one of the most popular stations in the US (mainly because of Erbstein's homemade content, which included live broadcasts from the nearby Purple Grackle).

My note: An illegal with live radio broadcasts. Were these guys strong or what? <g>

1914 pic of Erbstein with his client "Big Jim" Colosimo, one of Chicago's first underworld boss's:

In 1917 Erbstein, along with Clarence Darrow, defended several men accused of corruption, including Chicago's Chief of Police Charles Healey who was indicted, in part, for taking payoffs to allow gambling to operate—all men were acquitted.

1923 pic of Erbstein and Clarence Darrow with their client Fred Lundin, a close political associate of Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson:

My note: Clarence Darrow, isn't he the guy that proved in a Tennessee court, my grandpa was a monkey? <g> It is amazing how many really famous people we have tied to Illegal club operators all throughout the "Era Of The Illegals."

The Purple Grackle was one of biggest and best known night clubs located in rural Chicago and has been described as a "notorious haven for mobsters." Erbstein died in 1927 and his brother-in-law Valentine King took over the Purple Grackle. When King died in 1931 his widow put the place up for rent.

My guess is that this is around the time when Newell gets involved with the place. He's certainly involved with it by March 1935 when gunmen attempted to hijack the gaming room:

Robber Slain in Raid on Old Erbstein Place

A band of five machine gun robbers last night invaded the Purple Grackle roadhouse on the Lake street highway, 3½ miles east of Elgin, firing bursts of shots over the heads of the fifty men and women patrons to terrorize them.

The gunmen fled without loot, however, when a return burst of fire from within hit one of them. The robbers carried their wounded companion away with them. That was about 8 o'clock.

The roadhouse was originally built some fifteen years ago by the late Charles Erbstein, well-known criminal lawyer, as an elaborate night club. Five years later it was burned down, and rebuilt. At present it is known as an elaborate roadhouse with gambling facilities. State highway police gave the name of the manager as Francis Newell.

Gaming Room Crowded.

The gaming room was crowded last night when the bandits strode into the vestibule, their leader masked with a red handkerchief. A padlocked door barred their entrance. They shattered the glass, and shouted to employes inside to open the portal, firing a few blasts from their guns to emphasize their remarks.

Patrons dropped to the floor as the bullets whistled overhead and smacked into the walls. Then, witnesses said, someone opened fire from inside the place, and one of the bandits dropped.

Employes, however, denied that the shots came from within, and expressed the belief that the bandit was shot by one of his companions.

My note: I bet "Ocean's 11" would have done a much better job of heisting the place. <g>

I'm not sure how long Newell was associated with the Purple Grackle or whether he had any connection to the place when he ordered the FWN chips--about a year and a half after the attempted hold-up. His nephew Alfred applied for the Purple Grackle's liquor license in 1942 and was arrested on a gambling charge there in 1944.

In August 1939 Newell and the Purple Grackle were mentioned in one of several indictments of race wire interests. In the article below, a quote from the indictment says that the Purple Grackle was "owned, operated and conducted" by Newell—but the date upon which the violation of the law occurred is unclear (some of the indictments involved two of the biggest names in the history of the race wire: Moses Annenberg and James Ragan).

New York Times—31aug1939:

HANDBOOK MAKING CALLED A LOTTERY IN ANNENBERG CASE

New Attack Opened on Horse Race Gambling in Federal Indictments at Chicago

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—An attack by the government on horse race gambling in handbooks as an illegal lottery, an unprecedented move in the history of the Federal courts, was contained today in indictments returned by a grand jury before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The jury has been investigating the enterprises and financial activities of Moses L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher. Mr. Annenberg, already under indictment on charges of income tax evasion, was named in four of seven new indictments.

The two chief indictments also named as defendants two men high in the Annenberg organization, Charles W. Bidwill head of Bentley, Murray & Co., Inc., printing concern, and owner of the Chicago Cardinals professional football team, and James M. Ragen Sr., general manager of the Nationwide News Service, Inc., purveyor of racing information to handbooks.

The three defendants and their companies were charged with using the mails in furtherance of a lottery scheme and carrying over interstate wires the mutual prices paid at race tracks. These prices were described by the grand jury as a list of prizes awarded by means of a lottery.

The indictments mentioned the companies as having supplied wires and equipment used in transmission of turf news to bookies.

One indictment, containing eighteen counts and covering 240 pages, charged the defendants with mailing "hard cards" and "wall sheets" to six bookie establishments in Illinois, Michigan and Iowa.

The "hard cards" are cardboard sheets on which the handbook operator keeps his record of the changes in betting odds, results of races, payoff prices and so on. The "wall sheets" are of paper, larger in size, and are posted on the wall so that the same information recorded on the hard cards may be visible to handbook patrons.

The accused, the indictment stated, "did deposit and cause to be deposited in the mails in Chicago, to be sent, conveyed and delivered by mail, a package containing a certain lottery scheme offering prizes dependent upon chance, which lottery scheme was, as the defendants well knew, being owned, operated and conducted in Cook County, near Elgin, by one Francis Newell, under the name of the Purple Grackle, and which package and contents concerned the lottery scheme and was intended by the defendants to promote, aid and further the said lottery scheme and the carrying on of the business thereof."

Bookies listed, besides Newell of the Purple Grackle, a roadhouse, were Josephine Leonardi of St. Charles, Ill.; Donald T. Elliott, Majestic Cigar Store, Grand Rapids, Mich.; William Higgins, Fox Lake, Ill.; Charles Peck, the Belmont Club, Burlington, Iowa, and Theodore Wyman, Elgin.

My note: It looks like the above might have been the first time Feds went after the race wire, Newell and The Purple Grackle were indicted. One of the indicted was Charles Bidwill, owner of the Chicago Cardinals professional football team.

The Discovery Channels story on the capture of John Dillinger cites the mob helping the FBI to take down Dillinger because he was bringing too many Feds and therefore heat to the race wires which made more money in 1 day than Dillinger's entire bank heists put together.

5234 North Clark St., the address to which the FWN chips were delivered in Oct.1936 and April 1937, was at the time of the orders a tavern in which a handbook was operating. It was also known to have "dice girls" or "26 girls" working there. The structure which housed the address still exists (Brownstone Antiques):

FWN10att2

The tavern was raided in November 1938:

ARMISTICE DAY'S PAST; AXMEN RESUME WAR ON HANDBOOKS; CHOP 6

State's Attorney Courtney's axmen, after making Armistice day a rest period, returned yesterday to their old task of chopping up the furniture of handbook resorts. Six places were smashed, increasing the total wreckings for the anti-gambling campaign to 639.

The raiding squads were led by Sergts. Ernest Sloey and Daniel Moriarty. They found from thirty-five to 200 customers in each of the spots visited, and sent them all away. The raids were at 65 East Garfield boulevard, 3219 East 85th street, 9212 Commercial avenue, 3404 Lincoln avenue, 6570 Sheridan road, and 5324 North Clark street.

FWN11att2

Three days later:

BEG YOUR PARDON!

An item Sunday stated that state's attorney's police raided a handbook at 5324 North Clark street. The address should have been given as 5234 North Clark street.

FWN12att2

My note: As you see in 2 of the above articles 5234 N Clark was mostly a race wire betting joint.

Presumably Newell ran the handbook at the tavern but I never saw his name associated with the place. By the summer of 1939 Newell had become the owner of a place in Wheeling, in far northern Cook County, called the "Chicago House."

Illinois State Police raided the place in 1939 in a campaign against slot machines, which when found in your place jeopardized your liquor license:

LIQUOR BOARD CITES 20 IN SLOT MACHINE CASES

Among the 20 tavern owners who appeared before the state liquor commission yesterday to argue their licenses should not be revoked because they operated slot machines were:

Alex Borchart of the Plantation Hut, Des Plaines; Frank J. Collins of the Knotty Pine tavern, Mannheim road and Medill avenue, Franklin Park; Harold L. Hartman of the Hartman house, Wheeling; Carl Kosel of the Pal-Waukee Airport restaurant, Mount Prospect; F. W. Newell of the Chicago house, Wheeling; Michael Nowakowski, 6839 Milwaukee avenue, Niles; Raymond A. Olson, 5400 North River road, Norwood Park; Armon Ouzounais of the Armon Canary tavern, 4824 Dempster street, Niles Center; William A. Pinger, 3458 River road, Franklin Park; Felix Rogalski of the Union hotel, Wheeling; Julius Weiss of the Mecca tavern, Des Plaines, and Marie Wolf of Wolf's tavern, Mount Prospect.

FWN14att2

My note: Could the FWN chips have been used at The Chicago House? Possibly but only slot machines mentioned in the raids.

Newell was the owner operator of the Chicago House until his death in 1943 at the age of 59.

Frank W. Newell, owner of the Chicago House passed away last Thursday in the Edgewater Hospital, Chicago. Mr. Newell, who was 59 years old, had been in poor health for some time and death came several days after he was stricken with a heart attack. Funeral services were held in a Northside Chapel on Saturday, and the body was removed to Lawyersville, New York for burial. He is survived by his widow, Adelaide.
